 Sarcomas, rare cancers of the bone and soft tissue, affect ~14,000 people each year in the United States.

 Children are more likely to get bone sarcomas.

 Adults more commonly battle soft tissue sarcomas.

 Pet dogs develop sarcomas similar to humans and benefit from advancements in the research & treatment of human sarcomas.

 All proceeds benefit collaborative sarcoma research at Penn Medicine's Abramson Cancer Center, University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine, and Children's Hospital of Philadelphia.
